

Huon Small Farms Expo

about 6 months ago

Isn't it ironic that the Tasmanian Mountain Pepper comes from... Tasmania yet very few people actually cultivate it. Most of the growing Australia and International market is supplied from bush collecting - where the yields and quality are highly variable and the cost of "harvesting" is high. Andrew Rath from Bronzewing Farm is one of our speakers in the Marquee and he wants to change this and is actively encouraging more 'on-farm' production of selected cultivars. You might of seen him in the Tasmanian Tas Country newspaper last week. He will be speaking in the marquee at 12:15 about his small farm's journey through cultivation, processing, marketing and sale of this niche spice. www.tasmanianmountainpepper.com
